What is a Community College?

A comprehensive resource for training and education.

A community college generally refers to a two-year institution of higher education that offers different levels of instruction adapted to fit the needs of the community. Community colleges are characterized by open, equitable admissions (anyone can attend), a community-based philosophy, lower tuition and a quality education. These institutions provide a wide range of educational programs, including:

- Two-year degrees (Associate degrees)
- Transferable degrees (for students transferring to four-year colleges or universities)
- Credit and non-credit vocational and occupational training
- Certificate courses
- Adult basic education
- Small business development assistance
- English as a second language
- Developmental/Remedial coursework
- Non-credit community and continuing education

Following a straight A's philosophy:

- Affordable
- Accessible
- Adaptable
- Accountable

Mission

The College of Western Idaho is a public, open-access, and comprehensive community college committed to providing affordable access to quality teaching and learning opportunities to the residents of its service area in western Idaho.

Vision

The College of Western Idaho provides affordable, quality teaching and learning opportunities for all to excel at learning for life.

Mission: Core Themes and Measures of Mission Fulfillment

Professional Technical Education

- Students who complete professional technical programs are employed in a related field or have transferred to a 4-year college or university.
- Students who transfer to colleges or universities as juniors will earn a 2.0 GPA or higher at the transfer institution.

Lower Division Transfer Education

- Students who complete the transfer requirements enter a 4-year college or university within 5 years.
- Students who transfer to colleges or universities as juniors will earn a 2.0 GPA or higher at the transfer institution.

Basic Skills Education

- Students successfully complete an Adult Basic Education course.
- Students who successfully complete a basic skills course also successfully complete the next course in the sequence or a college-level course in the same discipline.

Community Outreach

- Students who complete workforce development training satisfy their goals for professional development as well as their employers' expectations.
- Participants in Community Education offerings and events rate the experience as satisfactorily meeting expectations.
- Students are provided access to CWI courses/programs at multiple locations, on multiple schedules, and through multiple delivery methods.
- The CWI student population reflects the diversity of its service area.
